North Jersey Transportation Planning Authority, whose board approved the Seashore Trestle project two months ago, are awaiting approval from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to build the project in a time frame of two to three years and start construction in 2013. Ralph Caputo, an authority engineer, said the authority's official project aims, as anticipated, are to make improvements to the existing Seashore Trestle and to accommodate the addition of the Outer-Central Regional Transportation Authority's Newark-to-Woodbridge commuter rail line. Caputo said the new alignment will put the planned Hightstown Line, planned to be in operation in 2015, at Seashore Boulevard. The 15.5-mile extension would be built from the current terminus in Newark to Woodbridge along the current alignment of the Trestle, a straight freight track between the current Hightstown and Plumsted interchanges. The new alignment will no longer need to cross the river.

CAPTION Seaside Heights resident Lisa Amato thinks the new Seaside Heights sewer treatment plant is bad for the environment. Caputo said the final alignment for the project, once the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers makes its final approval, will be similar to the "managed realignment" approved last month for the bypass around the Deer Park-Central Avenue Station, which is expected to be built by year's end.

CAPTION The Army Corps of Engineers provided the "managed realignment" to the NJ Transit board in May, reducing the size of the proposed right-of-way and reducing the number of separate bridges.
