Airfoil 5.5 Crack as a free app for both iOS and ... 1996-97 Manchester United F.C. season. The 1996-97 season was Manchester United's 94th season in the Football League, and their 22nd consecutive season in the top division of the English football league system. United won their 24th league title and achieved their third double (First Division and FA Cup), as well as their seventh European Cup Winners' Cup, as they beat Borussia Dortmund 3-1 in the final. This was also the last season for Manchester United to spend at the much-admired Maine Road and the last to be known as "Old Trafford". Background This was Manchester United's "Centenary Club" 100th anniversary season, where they were aiming to win their third league and cup double, and to qualify for the UEFA Champions League. The season saw the departure of some of their top players, including star players Roy Keane and Eric Cantona, as the Glazer family acquired the club and increased the expenditure on players, most notably David Beckham. This saw United spending £70 million on players and relegation was thought to be a
