The base 2018 M5 is still powered by the 3.0-liter six-cylinder engine producing 420 hp and 369 lb-ft of torque, mated to a six-speed manual transmission or optional xDrive all-wheel drive. The M5 also gets the same engine as the new X5 M50d. The M5's manual transmission is powered by a rear-mounted motor with a single drive shaft, while the optional eight-speed Steptronic automatic is mated to a longitudinally mounted engine and transaxle. The M5's motor is rated at 400 hp and 369 lb-ft of torque. The standard M5 gets a top speed of 155 mph and has a 0-60 time of 4.3 seconds, but we expect the M5's track-focused Xdrive variant will outperform its standard sibling.

Styling The BMW M5 has always been very distinctive, and the 2018 model continues in that vein. The new model features the widest track in the BMW M line, with wider fenders, wheel arch flares, and new M5 badges on the side. This widened track is offset by reshaped and lower-slung air intakes, along with a slim rear spoiler that mounts on the roof and extends all the way to the tail. A glass roof is standard and provides the M5 with additional headroom. The flat glass lid can be opened or lowered to allow for fresh air to flow into the cabin. An electrically operated sliding glass sunroof is optional. Inside, the 2018 M5 comes standard with the new, 10.25-inch iDrive touch screen. This new display
