Want to play today's game? Ranged Attacks Unleashing fury on your enemies from a distance is great fun. But, if you miss one, you'll get whacked with a ton of damage on your next turn! Luckily, you have some excellent shield and attack capabilities at your disposal. Let's go over what you can do.

Shield Weapons Once per combat, you may choose to use your shield as an improvised weapon that deals 1d6 damage against a target, and deals half damage against anyone not wearing a shield. You may use this attack once per combat. This replaces all existing ranged attacks. To use this ability, you must have the Armor Core tattoo.

Grenade Weapons Equipping a Grenade Launcher to your weapon allows you to deal 2d6 weapon damage and create a ray that deals 1d6 damage for every 2 points of damage you deal to a target this combat. You may use this ray once per combat. You must be holding a Grenade Launcher to use this ability. The Grenade Launcher has the Squib symbol, allowing you to set it on fire with your Scavenger. To use this ability, you must have the Weapon Core tattoo.

Ranged Attacks As a swift action, you may attack with a ranged weapon at your next opportunity. This attack might be with an arrow, projectile, or even a kamikaze! You'll need to ensure your attack is worth it, and you must be able to see your target. To use this ability, you must have the Ranged Core tattoo.

Explosives As an immediate action, you may use a distraction skill in addition to your Attack skill to create one burst (3d6) of area damage. While this burst is active, you may cause a critical effect. When this effect is resolved, all area damage and critical effects are resolved. You may use this ability up to five times per combat. You must be wearing heavy armour to use this ability. This replaces all existing ranged attacks. To use this ability, you must have the Explosive Core tattoo.

Special Equilibrium As a swift action, you may activate one of your implants to add a point to your shield. This requires one free hand to activate, but you can choose what points you add. This replaces all existing ranged attacks. To use this ability, you must have the Special
