Q: Add new line character to end of selected files I want to add new line character at the end of the file as new_content.txt Contents of the file are as following : hello1 hello2 I need to add a new line character to the end of the file to make it look like : hello1 hello2 Note: There is not space in file before adding new line character. I don't want to open the file, read content and add a new line to the end, because it could potentially take time or can be a big file. I have written the following code, but it overwrites the content of the file. file_handler.py import urllib2 import re url = " r = urllib2.urlopen(url) content = r.read() for each in re.findall(r'[ \r]', content): with open(r'C:\Users\Name\Desktop\input.txt', 'w', newline=each) as f: print each f.close() Is there an efficient way to do this? A: The only way to do it in Python is to read the file, replace the characters at the end
