The speed of your ball will come from the ballistics of its original velocity, additional punch and spin depending on the angle at which you turn your player, and acceleration depending on how hard you hit it. Each of the four test matches – home, away, home playoff, away playoff – will have different objectives. These will include a series of goals and assists that will earn a point for the team that outscores its opponent. At the end of three matches, the winning team will win the tournament. In the "Finals" challenge, the best of one or two series will be loaded. The winning team's players will act as if they had just won the World Cup. All players on the winning team will have a best possible rating and positive player behavior will be applied to them. This will even apply to the bench.
