The UK government is refusing to reveal its Scotland bill so that an independent Scotland can work out how to fund the considerable infrastructure gap between Scotland and the rest of the UK. Nicola Sturgeon has called on the government to "make public" this bill to allow an independent Scotland to make its own calculations on how much it needs to contribute to pay for existing infrastructure in the rest of the UK. A new white paper on the future relationship between Scotland and the rest of the UK will outline the next steps in negotiations. That paper will set out commitments and obligations from Scotland on how it will meet existing infrastructure needs within its borders and an estimate of how those needs could be met in the first post-independence year.
