Note The default behavior is to create a new layer if you click a tool and press Enter after typing a command. You can change this behavior with Preferences, under the `_File_` menu, by unchecking the `Create New Layers Automatically` check box (Figure 4-2). For example, if you click the `Create a New Layer` button, Photoshop creates a new blank layer, as shown in Figure 4-2, but if you press Enter, the next keystroke is used for the command instead. If you want to create a new layer, you must first create the layer, type, or resize an object, and then press Enter. You can then resize or edit the layer using the interface without creating a new layer. If you don't

Minuscule 750

Minuscule 750 (in the

Gregory-Aland

numbering), Θ201

(von Soden), is a

Greek minuscule

manuscript of the New Testament, on parchment.

Paleographically it has been assigned to the 11th century. Scrivener labelled it by 761. C.

R. Gregory saw no reason to doubt the text or its date. Description

The codex contains the text of the four Gospels on 533 parchment leaves (size). The text is written in one column per page, 30 lines per page. It contains the Eusebian Canon tables at the end of the Gospel of Matthew, Luke, and John, but not at the beginning of the Gospel of Mark.

According to Kurt Aland the Greek text of the codex is a representative of the Byzantine text-type. Aland placed it in Category V. History Scrivener and Gregory dated the manuscript to the 11th century. Currently the manuscript is dated by the INTF to the 11th century. The manuscript was brought from Constantinople, where it was found together with Minuscule 73. Scrivener saw no reason to doubt its early date. Gregory in 1884 dated it to the 11th century. The manuscript was added to the list of New Testament manuscripts by Scrivener (766e) and Gregory (763e). The manuscript is now housed at the National Library of Greece (139) in Athens. See

Ethiopia, toxoplasmosis is a infection with Toxoplasma gondii, the etiologic agent of toxoplasmosis, can be found in virtually every cat species, including domestic cats (Felis domesticus). Due to zoonotic potential and lack of reliable data about the seroprevalence of toxoplasmosis in domestic cats in Ethiopia, a serological survey to determine the prevalence of toxoplasmosis was undertaken to provide a basis for public health decision-making. Sera collected from a total of 714 domestic cats in southwest Ethiopia were tested for anti-T. gondii antibodies by the modified agglutination test. The overall prevalence of T. gondii infection in domestic cats was 4.6%. After categorizing the cats according to different risk factors, significant associations were found between seropositivity and the number of owned cats (P Properties of a human pancreatic chymotrypsinogen of the first transition-state-
