Descargar solucionario aritmetica de baldor gratis (solucionario) - ICUBE. It is known to use aluminum and/or alloys of aluminum for the production of components or structural members having superior wear resistance properties, and in particular components for applications in the aerospace industry. A problem that frequently occurs in aerospace applications is the corrosion of the aluminum components in the presence of HCl from the combustion gases produced by combustion engines. To overcome this problem, it is known to provide such aluminum components with a barrier layer of an adhesion promoting layer interposed between the aluminum base and the adhesion-promoting layer. However, due to the complex geometry of the component, its production requires a number of subsequent steps of painting, etching and deposition in order to produce the component as a completely finished product. Furthermore, due to the need of a subsequent etching step of the component, it is difficult to produce the component with holes. To produce a component as a finished product for an application such as an aircraft with holes, the component should be provided with a hole, in which the hole walls are made from the adhesion promoting layer. Furthermore, the hole walls should prevent the penetration of the corrosive medium into the aluminum base. Consequently, it is necessary to produce a hole with a diameter of a few millimeters and a height of a few hundred micrometers. To solve the aforementioned problems, this invention relates to a component for a corrosive medium, in particular for aerospace applications, provided with a corrosion-resistant layer which has a substantially larger thickness than the thickness of the layer of aluminum, wherein the component comprises a wear-resistant layer which is deposited at least on a surface of the component, and a corrosion-resistant hole in the wear-resistant layer, the hole having a diameter of between 50 micrometers and 100 micrometers and a depth of between 1000 micrometers and 5000 micrometers, wherein the hole has the characteristic that a ratio of the thickness of the wear-resistant layer to the depth of the hole is between 0.1 and 1. Furthermore, the invention relates to a method for manufacturing a component of this kind, wherein a wear-resistant layer is deposited at least on a surface of a substrate, a hole is drilled in the wear-resistant layer, which hole has a diameter of between 50 micrometers and 100 micrometers and a depth of between 1000 micrometers and 5000 micrometers, and the 6d1f23a050
