The other one is in the controller's second. Now when I click on a link to the first controller, I want to open the second view of the second controller. I tried this, but doesn't work: @Html.RouteLink("Home", "", new { controller = "FirstController", action = "Index" }) @Html.RouteLink("Home", "", new { controller = "SecondController", action = "Index" }) I want to do this with controller's first view and not to start in second controller's view. How can I do this? A: You can add "Controller" in Route attribute like below, @Html.RouteLink("Home", "", new { controller = "FirstController", action = "Index", "Route" = "SecondController" }) Q: Can't get Laravel to display a name when using save method to save an item When I try to save an item, it never successfully saves. It always replaces the pre-existing entry with the newly created item. I'm probably making a stupid error, but can't figure it out.
