Although it appears that the MRI findings may help to determine the risk of rupture in these patients, this is not so well established and there is no one data that has come forth on this issue. In a study of 21 patients with unruptured or ruptured aneurysms, those with a large aneurysm with a fusiform morphology were associated with a greater risk of rupture when compared with those with a wide-necked aneurysm. In another study, patients with aneurysms involving the terminal bifurcation, wide necked fusiform aneurysms, and focal areas of wall thinning were at a higher risk for rupture. In our patient, the most important imaging finding was a large unruptured aneurysm, with the risk of rupture being high. Although the approach for the aneurysm was complicated by the location and size, the direct impression of the surgeon was that it was a fusiform aneurysm, extending to the posterior wall of the truncus of the middle cerebral artery. CONCLUSION {#sec1-4} ===== Bilateral cervical LMCA originating from the truncus of the MCA is very rare. The aneurysm was successfully occluded with an ACP with good outcome. Ashampoo Music Studio 3-keygen incl free download present invention relates to a system and method of automatically generating a composition from a combination of a set of rules and a set of data, wherein the set of rules describes the system or the method in a high level language and the set of data describes a set of classes that are to be defined within the system or method, and, more specifically, to a system and method of generating a logic based composition of rules and data that describe a system or method in a high level language from a desired logic based description of the same using rules and data that describe the same system or method within a first high level language.1. Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to an automatic transmission for use in vehicles, and more particularly to a control system for the automatic transmission which is capable of efficiently carrying out shift operations. 2. Description of the Related Art A shift control apparatus for use with an automatic transmission has been proposed in Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. 59-216252. In this proposed control system, target speeds for shifts are set for a plurality of vehicle speeds, respectively. If the difference between a target speed and a running speed of a vehicle is zero or large, a friction element is activated while if the difference is small, a friction element is deactivated. That is, when the difference between the target speed and the running speed is small, the activation of the friction element is delayed, while when the difference is large, the activation of the friction element is advanced. Thus, a substantially constant torque is produced from the friction element while the shift control is carried out. The above-mentioned control system, however, causes the shift operations to be carried out intermittently. Thus, the shift control is not suitable for obtaining a transmission ratio suitable for a state of the vehicle. In the case of switching the 6d1f23a050
