This software can replace some of the functions of a "professional" music sequencer. If you want to make a CD, simply add your tracks and manually use the same parameters. You can edit and remix each sound once it is sequenced and the changes will be preserved after each playback. Until now, not all artists or musicians were able to record their own music as easily, and the compositions often lacked editing possibilities. The results were often as easily guessed. With Raycode, you can solve this problem: - Automatic composition: the software does not limit you to a specific song structure. You can choose a standard pattern to fit the vibe you are trying to create. You can even create your own palette of instruments to play. This way, you can play your songs as you make them. - Automatic generation of the rhythms: Raycode automatically generates the songs as you play them. It then replaces them with the song you just created. You can take any song and use any rhythm, and it will be generated automatically, just like the original song. - Variations of the rhythm: with any song, you can use any drum kit. This powerful and unique feature allows you to play your song using various instruments, such as guitars and bass. Once your song is complete, all variations are available so that you can retune your song according to your taste. - Automatic arrangement of the melodies: if you like, you can arrange each melody according to its own parameters. Each melody can be played either on top or below each other. It is up to you to arrange the best way to play the song. 5ec8ef588b
