ActiveReports provides developers with a variety of ways to control license usage. For example, you can control usage by .NET Framework version (major and minor versions), by the assemblies referencing the designer, or by installation. ActiveReports includes a simple tool called the License Manager that makes it easy to maintain an up-to-date list of licenses for each instance of the product. The License Manager is the default tool that you can use to perform license assignment and .NET Framework version reporting. Licenses are grouped by application and can be associated with specific users.
