He said that there were "no guarantees" when asked about the possibility of the team being better, but that he believed his team had been prepared all offseason. "I think we're a better team on paper and I think we're a better team than we were a year ago, but there's no guarantee," said Kubiak. "There's no guarantee in anything. I think we've done a really good job throughout the offseason getting ready. We've worked hard, we've done a lot of things, we've made progress in areas that we needed to make progress in. I think we've done an incredible job, we've got a good culture here. We've got good football players here. I think we're a different team and I think we've gotten better during the offseason as a team and as individuals." The Broncos have spent the offseason getting bigger and stronger and Kubiak said that the team has also been better in terms of their football intelligence. "We've done 2edc1e01e8
