The BBC's coverage of the G7 summit is being widely criticised for focusing on world leaders such as Donald Trump and Vladimir Putin when climate change has been relegated to a subplot. Viewers in the UK were initially confronted with a "chase from San Francisco" graphic as the BBC showed no pictures of the climate talks in the Pacific city of Bonn. One Twitter user described the lack of coverage as "disgusting", with most of the live coverage centring on Trump in what was portrayed as a "silent" summit. Speaking at the event in Trump's absence, Theresa May told leaders "the era of colonialism, of nationalism, of isolationism, of protectionism, is over". "The era of specialisation is over. We can no longer close our eyes to the fact that to be competitive in the long-term in this new, digital, globalised economy, nations and communities need to work together,” she added. It was the first time any UK prime minister had attended the gathering, which began on Sunday and is due to finish on Friday. The Guardian, which reported on the event, was told by one participant: ❖
